WILL HOLD UNION SERVICES FOR CHURCH PLAYERS

Addresses on Clean Athletics to be Feature

AT THE LUTHERAN CHURCH

Various Teams of League Expected to Attend in a Body

Union services will be held by the various churches of Charleroi next Sunday evening at Christ Lutheran church, especially for the Charleroi Church League baseball players. The services are being arranged by members of the Ministerial Association, and the officials of the Church League. It is expected that the various teams will attend in a body.

There will be four addresses made, all along the general theme of "Clean Athletics." These addresses will be made by President Jesse K. Johnston, of the league, Rev. W. D. Fries, pastor of St. Jerome's Catholic church, Rev. G. G. Kerr, pastor of the Washington Avenue Presbyterian church and by Prof. I. T. Daniel, musical director of the public schools.

The general purpose of the meeting will be to impress upon the young players in the league the necessity of cleanliness in athletics. The league has become noted for its manly players, and there has been nothing more than just the natural friendly rivalry among the various teams. There have been practically no quarrels among the players on the field, and the few grievances which players had, have been settled without any trouble whatever. The season will close in August, and it is hoped from the interest which has been shown all along that it will continue for another such a season.

SUNDAY BASEBALL NOT YET STOPPED

Monongahela Church League Officials May Take Up the Matter

Apparently good intentions to stop Sunday baseball at Donora has fallen by the wayside, and if reports are correct, the Sunday games are thriving. Some commotion after the first Sunday game was played was raised by the Charleroi Ministerial Association. A Charleroi team played the first game against the Donora nine, and upon this was hinged the action of the local ministers. It was thought that the games on Sunday were discontinued then, but it seems that only every Sunday following there has been a game. Officials of the Monongahela Church League allege that some of their players are guilty of participation and are considering the advisability of taking up the matter for action.

Minister Accepts Call

The congregation of the First Christian church at Washington received word from Rev. Walter Mansell of the Christian church of Crawfordsville, Ind., that he had accepted the call and will take charge there the first Sunday in September.

No "Fights" For Washington County

District Attorney Acheson Calls Halt on Affair at the County Seat

Two boxing matches scheduled last night at Meadows and in Canton township, just across the Washington borough line were prohibited by District Attorney C. L. V. Acheson. The district attorney notified Al Martin, an ex-pugilist, who has been conducting the exhibitions for the last several weeks, that an act of Assembly prohibits boxing matches.

CHILDREN TO MARCH IN PARADE

Two More Bands Engaged for Bridge Demonstration

STRUCTURE BUILT IN 1895

In the main parade at the free bridge demonstration at Belle Vernon tomorrow will be a large number of school children from the Belle Vernon and North Belle Vernon schools. It is expected that they will ride in floats. The main parade will be from Belle Vernon to Lynn's Grove, back of Belle Vernon.

The automobile parade will not go to Monessen, as first arranged, but will leave Speers to come to Charleroi and then go back by way of Speers to cross the bridge and leading the marchers will go to Lynn's Grove. Two more bands, the Moose band of the valley and the Grand Army Drum corps, have been engaged and will take part in the parade. The Carmichael band has been engaged not only to take part in the parade but to give concerts during the day and evening. It is considered one of the best organizations of the kind in this part of the State.

In the parade will be automobiles, and among the marchers will be 300 Hungarians of Pricedale. Entries are still coming in for the yacht races and it will be one of the interesting features of the day.

The Bell Vernon bridge was erected in the year 1894, and was formally opened with a celebration on January 1, 1895. The celebration tomorrow will be the second one in its history.

CHARLEROI THE SECOND IN SCHOOL ENROLLMENT

Washington County Children of School Ages Number Nearly 25,000, With Males in the Majority

According to the figures compiled from the enrollment books in the county commissioners' office there are enrolled in this county 24,656 children of school ages, 6 to 16—12,704 males and 11,952 females. The total shows a decrease from the enrollment of last year, but an increase over 1907 and 1908. Washington leads with a total enrollment of 3,146 of whom 1,637 are males and 1,509 females. Other large enrollments are 2,017 in Charleroi; 1,361 Donora, and 1,216 Monongahela. Among the townships Carroll leads with 937 with Cecil and Chartiers next with 801 and 728.

Allen township has an enrollment of 403 and Fallowfield township comes to the front with 295. The borough of North Charleroi's enrollment is 210 and that of Speers borough is 101. Twilight, which is a rural borough, has an enrollment of 101.

LAUGH AT MOVEMENT TO NAME "PROPER" TICKET

Pittsburg Newspaper Speaks of Class of "Shreheads" Which Compose the Majority of Signers

With the ridiculous declaration "that representative free government has been overthrown in Pennsylvania," "84 political shreheads, some of whom have been rejected at the polls by their constituents, have issued a call for a convention at Philadelphia on July 28 to nominate a "proper" State ticket. They are sadly in distress at the performance of "the creatures of a political machine whose owner is based on fraud and force," and so they conclude that the "obligation is upon all faithful men alike" to get busy.

One of the signers of this call is Ernest F. Acheson of Washington county. He was for many years a

NEW HIGHWAY SCHOOL CODE IS INSPECTED IS APPROVED

Commissioner and State Engineer go Over Bentleyville Road

The county commissioners in company with J. Russell Wilson, engineer for the State Highway Department in this section, made a tour over the Bentleyville-Ellsworth road on Saturday for a final inspection as the highway has been completed by the contractors, Hasting and Piper of Charleroi.

The commissioners expressed themselves as being well pleased with the road especially the Ellsworth end. This part is just new while the section leading toward Charleroi was constructed two years ago. The highway which leads through the hustling little borough of Bentleyville is 10,150 feet in length while Ellsworth has 3,200 feet of the highway. Of this road 2,700 feet is 12 feet wide, and 3,000 feet extending through the borough of Bentleyville is of brick 24 feet wide; 2,600 feet is 16 feet wide and the balance 12 feet in width.

This road joins with the first Flinn road constructed in Washington county which was built in 1904 by N. C. Hunter from Beallsville to near what is known as Peterman's hill.

The estimated cost of the highway through the borough of Bentleyville was $21,000 and through Ellsworth $5,727.

Charge for Ward Patients Decreased

Directors of Monessen-Charleroi Hospital Order Change

At a meeting of the board of the directors of the Monessen-Charleroi hospital at Monessen last night the price of admission for ward patients was reduced from $10 to $7 a week. This was done to meet the competition of the Pittsburgh and other hospitals which charge the latter rate. The board has in contemplation a movement that will place the institution on a substantial footing so that it will command the united support of all interests in this section.

ERSTWHILE BOSS NOW INSURGENT

Washington's Former Politician Calls Regularity Crime

HOW HE GOT HIS START

Concerning the peculiar antics of former Congressman E. F. Acheson, who from a regular of the most regular, and absolute boss of the county, has become an insurgent and a bolter, the Washington Record says:

"All those who have given support to the regular Republican organization in Pennsylvania are partly responsible for these crimes—criminal conspiracy to defraud the State and are co-partners with ex-Auditor General W. P. Snyder and ex-Superintendent of Public Grounds and Buildings J. W. Shunk, now serving time in the Eastern penitentiary."

Thus the boss, irregular, editorially makes regularly a crime. If he means what he says then we cheerfully grant him the privilege of confessing co-partnership in the capitol loot.

For the past 12 years was not the ex-boss a political leader in his own county just as these two men were, "The political leaders of their respective counties?" It is true that the repudiated ex-Congressman was, in the earlier days of his leadership to an extent opposed to the State organization, but after the defeat of Dalamer in 1890 there was a truce patched up between the leaders of the Allegheny county Republicans, with whom the fallen boss had been training and M. S. Quay who was then the leader of the so-called machine. One of the terms which Quay conceded was the nomination of Acheson for Congress. This nomination was made, but the revolt in 1892 defeated him at the election. He was again, after a long, drawn-out conference, nominated in 1894 and that time elected. It is true that his nomination came to a great extent through the State machine but it was a concession by them for which he was under little obligation. It did not release him from his associates in his fights to secure that concession. But in 1895 during the

Burgess Risbeck Issues

Edict on Matter

REPLY TO MINISTERS

Sentiment Against Shows Which it is Feared Might Cause Trouble

In answer to the protest of the Ministerial Association Burgess Geo. W. Risbeck this morning announced that he would not permit the showing in Charleroi of pictures of the Jeffries-Johnson fight. The edict will apply not only to local theatres but also to transient picture men who might endeavor to give reproductions here of the fight.

The Ministerial Association presented a resolution to Burgess Risbeck yesterday, protesting against the licensing of places to show the pictures, the sentiment among the ministers being that such would endanger the moral standing of the community, and possibly cause race trouble as in some other places.

Burgess Risbeck said this morning: "The prevailing sentiment seems to be against the production of the fight pictures, and I think to prevent the least possibility of trouble it is better that such class of entertainment be barred. The managements of the regular theatres I am satisfied are thoroughly in accord with the sentiment, providing transient picture men are kept from the town. The latter will most certainly be barred."

PROHIBITIONISTS START WORKING

Conditions Fair For Party Holding its Own in County

Rev. C. E. Swart of Washington, representative of the Prohibition party in this county, was in Charleroi today doing political and temperance work for the party. He talked to several of the supporters of the Prohibition ticket. Rev. Swart said that while he had just started a canvass of the county, matters seemed to be in good shape among the Prohibitionists. He says that many will have nothing to say on either the county or district elections, but are waiting for developments.

NORTH CHARLEROI MAN DIES AT HOME

Mathias Wolf, 51 years old, died yesterday afternoon at 3:50 o'clock at his home in North Charleroi, after a somewhat extended illness of stomach trouble. The funeral will be held from the late residence at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, the services to be conducted by Rev. C. E. Frontz of Christ Lutheran church. Interment will be in the Monongahela cemetery. The deceased is survived by his widow, two daughters and two sons.

Why It Will Lose.

Speaking of the call for a convention at Philadelphia next week to nominate a ticket in opposition to the Republican and Democratic State tickets, of which former Congressman E. F. Acheson is one of the promoters, the Connellsville Courier says:

"The appeal will not appeal very strongly to the average excellent citizen, first because it contains the names of too many disappointed office-seekers, and second, because no machine was ever constructed by politicians that cannot be smashed to atoms at any time its work is unsatisfactory to a majority of the people or a majority of the party which it represents.

"Senator Penrose is accused of being the head of Republican machine and Colonel Guffey is accused of being the head of a Democratic machine, and they are both accused of having a private community of political interest; yet neither could maintain his leadership or his bossship, just as it pleases the reader to term it, without the consent of the common people of his party.

"They remain in their respective positions, leaders of organizations or bosses of machines, just as you please, so long as they give a good account of their stewardship. They stay if they make good, but they go if they do not. If they see to it that the government or the party they are responsible for is intelligently and honestly administered or directed, the great mass of honest citizens, members of either of the great political parties are content. The present demand for a change of help snacks too much of the plaint of discharged and discredited veritons. The cry is against a political machine, not against the government, and for the people by that machine. In spite of broken-down political hypocrites, we will away have political leaders and political organizations, and our faith in them will continue to be measured by their works alone."

Boxing Contests

The action of District Attorney Acheson in prohibiting two boxing matches in Canton township, near the Washington borough line, is highly commendable. Not only are these exhibitions contrary to law, but they are perhaps the most demoralizing contests in the whole category of what is popularly termed sports. The country can get along very well without these exhibitions.

It is not the physical brutality of boxing or prize fighting that makes this form of sport objectionable and demoralizing. As a matter of fact more people are killed and seriously injured in football and baseball than in the prize ring. Two trained pugilists will not inflict as much damage to one another as will two unskilled citizens in a rough and tumble street fight, yet the so-called manly art seems to appeal to the most debased class of humanity and to exert a downward influence on all who become its devotees. The worst feature about a prize fight or a boxing match is the crowd of toughs and plug-uglies it attracts. The exhibition in itself is usually tame and uninteresting so far as a physical contest goes, but the mob that attends gives vent to the worst phases of human nature, and the effects of these are demoralizing in the extreme.

With all the facilities that exist for baseball, rowing, tennis and other clean field sports, there is no occasion for the development of the prize ring.
The authorities will do well to suppress all efforts in this direction, and in doing so will perform a civic benefit that is most essential.

Like Banquo's Ghost

If further proof of the insincerity of former Congressman E. F. Acheson were needed to show him up in his vindictive fight against the Republican party in general and Congressman J. K. Tener in particular, the article published elsewhere from the Washington Record will refresh the memories of those who recall Mr.
Acheson's somewhat variagated and checkered political career. The article in question tells of Mr. Ache-son's double dealing with his constituency, and how in the face of earnest protests on the part of the leading and most influential citizens of the county he voted to perpetuate Quayism in the State when that species of political bossism was at its worst.

Like Banquo's ghost Mr. Acheson's record will not down. A political boss and dictator of the worst type, boasting that he named every official in Washington county, robbing the people of any voice in the selection of county candidates, and resorting to every known means in corrupt politics to attain his ends, his ultimate fate was long foreshadowed. At the first opportunity the voters had to exercise their franchise in the selection of candidates Mr. Acheson was overwhelmingly defeated. Now, the base ingratitude and venom he exhibits toward the party that nurtured him and made him all that he was and is, excites pity on the part of those who at one time believed in him, and contempt by the great majority that long ago realized his selfish and mercenary motives.

That may seem all right, but each is a serious quarrel from both trying to talk at once.

It is conceded that no person in the whole country has a better opportunity of enjoying life and going to the

Among some of the things the new sweet young teachers want who are scheduled to instruct the young idea here next year, are college beds.
With that extreme should go college surroundings, college kids to teach, college food, heaven help them with that, college rooms, college laboratories, a college president and professors of various trades instead of an ordinary superintendent of schools and bunch of principals, and a cute little college white poodle dog and a fool college cat.

From the number of people who have been appointed to tell Mr. Tener he has been nominated Governor, we opine that he will be well informed on the subject.

famous fight between Daniel H. Hastings and M. S. Quay for the chairmanship of the State committee, the ex Congressman turned his back upon his former friends. He went over and lent his help to Quay, and the Republican machine in that fight, the fiercest ever waged in a State convention.

The following year 1896, while a candidate for Congress, he was also elected a National delegate. He went to the National Convention and voted for Quay for President, against the martyred McKinley and in violent opposition to the majority of the voters in his district.

At the beginning of the next year a spirited contest was on between the Hon. Boies Penrose and the Hon. John Wanamaker for United States Senate and the sentiment of Washington county was at that time overwhelmingly in favor of Wanamaker. "But the fallen statesman was a staunch supporter of Penrose. The people of the county were in earnest and petitions were circulated asking the representatives to vote for Wanamaker.
Large delegations of representative citizens went to Harrisburg to urge the representatives to vote for Wanamaker—such men as the late J. W.
Jones, the late W. H. Borland, the late Dr. D. M. Anderson, John W.
Hallam and others, but this had no effect upon the then leader of the county. He is said to have said to W. H. Borland that he did not care a d—n how many people had signed the petition, that he was for Penrose.
And he went into the caucus and sat beside the Washington county representative until they had voted for Penrose as he had promised Quay that they would do.

During the famous deadlock in 1899 when Quay was a candidate for election to the United States Senate, and also under indictment in Philadelphia, Washington county gave Quay support day after day. In the fight of 1900 and 1901 it may be said that he was against Quay and the State machine, but in 1902 he was party to a deal by which he was to return to Congress and the Washington county representative in the Legislature were to go into the caucus, which meant of course, that they would support Penrose. He was then a candidate for a second term in the new district in 1904. He was again a candidate for Congress and through the influence of the State organization had no opposition for nomination. The same was true in 1906, when, beside being the organization candidate for Congress he became a candidate for Governor.
The fact that his ambition met with no response whatever from the State leaders made him desperately sore, and upon his arrival in Harrisburg at the State convention, where he found that the nomination for Governor Stuart had been agreed upon, he became engaged in a violent controversy with State Chairman Andrews in which Andrews is said to have found his supply of language quite amateurish.
In 1908 he again left the State organization and it is true that his desertion had considerable to do with his defeat.
According to what he says now he is partly responsible for these crimes," co-party with broken down Shumaker and poor Doc Snyder. The intelligent people of this county, knowing his political history as it has been set out above, cannot give any serious consideration to what he might say on this or any other subject.

terminal facilities at New York. The plan will give the agents on these divisions, comprising about 175 men, an opportunity to inspect the new terminal facilities and if the present plan goes through the trip will be made some time in August. The special train of six or seven Pullman probably will leave Pittsburgh some Friday evening and returning leave
New York city Saturday evening, giving the agents all day Saturday to see the great work that is about to be thrown open to the public.

Breaking Away From Work.

Our business men ought to break away from trade exactions long before they do—ought to do so as a matter of volition and ethical judgment rather than of physical necessity. They ought to get and give more enjoyment in life.
They ought to do less for self and more for others. They ought to live more in books and more in the open and less at their desks and realize better health and longer lives as a result. More and more culture in all its forms is exercising a growing influence, which manifest itself in lessened effort along the lines of money getting and the devotion of more time on the part of our business men to the pursuits which naturally accompany fulfilled leisure.

THEIR FINAL QUARREL

She Said It Was Irrevocable, but He Knew Better.

It was all off. They had quarreled, finally and irrevocably. It doesn't matter now what it was about. The chances are that in their anger neither remembered anything except that he had disappointed her in some awful, unforgivable way and she had seized the diamond engagement ring from a dainty, slender finger and thrust it upon him with a gesture of indolite scorn.

For an instant he held the circle in his hand ruefully. For another instant he paced the porch, hands in his pockets, head low, his voice quivering with emotion as he pleaded. Suddenly he stopped in front of her.

"That's final, is it?" he inquired.
"Final," she replied fully. "No man with a spark of—"

"All right!" he snapped. "This thing's no use to me, then."

His right arm shot out like the arm of a ball pitcher, and a second later the tink-tinkle of metal on the concrete walk half a block away told her he had thrown the ring away.

"Oh!" she cried, and there was sudden anguish in her heart. "I didn't mean it! We must find it—once."
"I don't care for it," he said stubbornly. "Life has mighty little now to make—"

"Silly!" she cried. "Help me—immediately."

He couldn't let her go alone, with night coming on, so, after proper reluctance, he followed. In the eagerness of searching all her anger melted.
It took a long time, but finally he stooped quickly and exclaiming, "Here it is!" held up the diamond ring.

What happened in the next hour is nobody's business except their own.
The human, masculine part of the story was disclosed to his bosom friend late that night in the quiet of their room.

"Had it in my pocket all the time," he said. "I threw a quarter down the street. And, dad bling it, I didn't find it either!"

But it did the work.—Kansas City Times.

One Case Where the Half Proved Greater Than the Whole.

There is no painter who lends himself to "splitting" so much as Botticelli—I, e., a division of the panel into two parts so as to form separate pictures. Years ago I sold to a Mr. Buttery of London half a Botticelli, which is now owned by Herr Kaufmann of Berlin. I have myself seen the other half of the picture, as well as the picture in its entire state.

In one case I can recall the half proved greater than the whole. A certain Signor Barilli bequeathed a valuable Botticelli to his two grandsons, who were twins. But, although twins, these two young men were rather quarrelsome and had no taste in common. One proposed to sell the picture, which had been painted for one of their ancestors. It is said, by Botticelli himself. The other would not consent.
The first then proposed that the other should buy his share and keep the picture himself. He took me with him, and I assigned the value of the picture at 5,000 lire, saying I would give that for it. The brother declined and suggested placing the picture in the custody of an aunt pending an adjustment of the terms. "Oh, very well," cried his brother, flying into a passion,
"if you won't buy and won't let me sell there's only one thing to do," and before any one could interfere he emptied three chambers of a revolver into the panel, completely destroying one-half of the composition, including a St.
John and a Joseph. The picture being sent to me to restore, I could do nothing with it and strongly advised separating the panel. Shortly after I did so the owner died, and I disposed of the work for 6,000 lire to Adolph Kann. It is now, I believe, in Russia.
—E. Panzone in Strand Magazine.

Too Lavish.

Mrs. Dobbs was trying to find out the likes and dislikes of her new boarder, and all she learned increased her satisfaction.

"Do you want pie for breakfast?"
she asked.

"No, I thank you," said the new boarder, with a smile. "Pie for breakfast seems a little too much."

"That's just the way I look at it," said Mrs. Dobbs heartily. "I say pie for dinner is a necessity, and pie for supper gives a kind of finishing touch to the day, but pie for breakfast is what I call putting on airs."—Youth's Companion.

The Usual Sequel.

When they reached Montreal on their elopement Chicago seemed far, far away, and they were both homesick.

"I will just telegraph the letter 'F'
to father," said the beautiful bride.
"That will mean forgiveness."

"Better make it two 'F's,'" advised the young bridegroom.

"Gracious, dear! And what will two
'F's' mean?"

"Why, forgiveness and funds."—Chicago News.

Poor Memory.

Green's dinner party the other night."

"What was it?"

"Called the hostess by her first husband's name."—Detroit Free Press.

THE UMPIRE

Did You Ever Hear the Fans Cheer
Him For His Work?

There is one unique phase connected with the life of the umpire which perhaps has never occurred to most lovers of baseball. You have often been to a theater and seen the hero or heroine—yes, even the villain—win round after round of applause for some excellent bit of acting.

You have been to a football game and heard some ball gladiator cheered to the echo for making a long run that resulted in a touchdown or for a flying tackle that prevented imminent defeat. When some player is injured they convey their sympathy to him by cheering his name.

You have been to a ball game and heard the fans cheer some crack pitcher because in a pinch he fanned some mighty batter. It's just the natural way of the American to show admiration and appreciation.

Rack your brain, think your hardest, recall every game you have ever attended, then see if you can remember a time when the umpire drew applause for his work. Have you ever heard the fans cheer the name of the umpire after he has worked a fifteen inning game which fairly bristled with close and unusual plays and got away without a kick? If you can recall such an incident, just dot it down in your notebook that you were present at a very, very unusual happening.

Do they cheer the umpire's name when he stops a foul tip with his shin or has a swift shoot bounced off his mask? Yes, they do—not. Any injury to the umpire usually gets a round of derisive laughter from the crowd.
Generally, if he has been going bad, some leather lunged individual requests that he be killed or chloroformed. Of course there are many people in the stands who sympathize with the umpire. Their sympathy is usually silence. That isn't much balm to his injury or feelings.

Applause would sound so strange to an umpire's ears that he would probably become so thoroughly frightened he would jump the back fence.—Billy Evans in New York Tribune.

THE TELESCOPE.

Galileo's Rude Instrument the First Used in Astronomy.

The first telescope was pointed toward the sky on Jan. 7, 1610, when Galileo first tried his rude instrument and was rewarded by discovering some of the moons of Jupiter. No great magnifying power was needed for this,
as at least one of the moons is large enough to be seen by the naked eye did not the nearness of the brilliant planet prevent this. Lenses had been known for a long time and were at that time in common use by near-sighted persons.

The name of the real discoverer of the telescope seems to be unknown, but the accepted story now is that two young sons of a Middlebury optician named Lippersley some time between 1605 and 1608, while playing with some lenses, happened to hold two of them at a distance from each other and were surprised and delighted to find that the weather vane on a neighboring tower seemed to come near them when looked at through the two lenses. In April, 1609, a little telescope made in Holland was offered for sale in Paris.

The next month Galileo, then a professor in the university at Padua, heard of this instrument and realized at once its importance in the study of astronomy. From the description of the Dutch instrument he had one made at once, and in August he astounded the people of Venice by showing them from the top of the campanile persons entering the doors of the church at Murano. This spyglass was less than two inches in diameter and magnified three times. From this crude instrument of Galileo to the monster telescopes forty inches in diameter of the present day is the development of only three centuries.— Argonaut.

An Interruption.

Among the primary pupils enrolled in a Baltimore school is the son of a prominent business man of that city, says Harper's Magazine. One afternoon at close of school the youngster sought out his father in his office, to whom he said:

"Dad, I'm getting tired of school. I think I'll quit."
"Why," asked the astonished parent, "what's the matter, Tommy? I thought you were fond of going to school."

"So I am, dad," responded the youngster, suppressing a yawn, "but it breaks up the day so."

His Opening Break.

A congressman had returned to his constituency to deliver a carefully prepared address. The day arrived, and loosening the first button of his Prince Albert, he uttered his carefully prepared preface remarks, and to this day he cannot understand the ripple of laughter which swept over his audience when he uttered his opening sentence. "Before I begin to speak to you I desire to say something." He said it.—Kansas City Star.

On the Way.

"I understand that you owe everything to your wife," said the tactless relative.

"No," answered Mr. Meekton, "but I will if I don't stop playing bridge with her and her mother."

Her Slip.

He—Do you think if I were to kiss your dog would bite me? She—Well—er—he's never done it to any one before.

SELF-SEEKERS ARE CONFUSED

Each Trying to Beat the Other to the Best Place in Line

THEY HAVE TOO MUCH GREED

Indications Are That John K. Tener's Majority Will Be Extraordinary. Regular Republicans Ready For Battle on Any Issue.

The political outlook in Pennsylvania promises well for the regular Republican organization and the prospects are that John K. Tener will be elected Governor this fall by an extraordinary majority. The third party movement seems to have fallen flat. It started off with too much weight for its age. In all such movements there are of necessity a few earnest and sincere persons who feel the promptings of pure and patriotic motives, but in almost every instance such persons are overwhelmed by the selfish few who have personal ambitions to satisfy and who usually control such movements for the advancement of their own purposes. Repeated attempts have been made since the regular party conventions were held to float a third or independent party in the State, but so far all such attempts have failed. John O. Sheatz, former State Treasurer, and a resident of Philadelphia, has insisted upon being the head and front of the third or independent party. D. Clarence Gibbons, also of Philadelphia, and a place-hunter with a record as long as a reform platform, not only insists upon heading any independent ticket which may be formed, but he has already grabbed a home-made nomination which he insists upon using for trading purposes. Last, but by no means least, comes W. H. Berry, the perpetual and everlasting candidate of the Bryan faction of the Democracy of the State, bearing a "holier than thou" banner, demanding first place or no play on any independent ticket to be named. With these conflicting ambitions, one attempting to butt the other off the political bridge, the third party movement has disgusted the unselfish people of the State and the cause has naturally suffered accordingly. The adherents of Webster Grim, the regular Democratic candidate for Governor, will not follow where Mr. Berry or either of the other would-be candidates is willing to lead. The followers of Mr. Sheatz, assuming that there are such in the State, will not support Mr. Grim. The Gibbons fellows will not stand for either Grim or Sheatz, and there you are. As a result the fight for Governor will center between Mr. Grim and Mr. Tener, which guarantees Mr. Tener's election by an overwhelming majority. Of course the efforts at a fix-up between the ambitious and greedy trio have not been entirely abandoned. But no fix-up at this stage in the contest will carry with it the confidence of the independently disposed voters of the State and without confidence there is no hope. We are likely to hear of third parties and independent tickets until after the coming fall election. Then there is certain to be but one successful party and that is certain to be the regular Republican party. The regular Republican party in the pending campaign is particularly fortunate. It is in position to wage the fight on national or State issues, just as its enemies may elect. So far as State issues are concerned or may be involved the administration of Governor Edwin S. Stuart has been impregnable. The pledges made to the voters of the State when Mr. Stuart was a candidate have been redeemed to the letter. Governor Stuart has stood firm and fast for earnest, honest and progressive policies. He has not employed brass band methods in his work, but he has been faithful to his duties and he has disposed of his duties with intelligence and sincere concern for the very best interests of the whole people. In his quiet but exceedingly effective work Governor Stuart has had the unqualified support and comfort of the Republican leaders of the State. His determination to give the people of the State just what he had pledged them was sustained at every possible point by the party leaders who are now entering upon another State contest with clean hands and with the assurance that they have in no way and at no time betrayed the confidence which the people so generously gave them. Self-seekers who pretend to see flaws in the affairs of Pennsylvania will, in the very nature of things, have some real difficulty in convincing the people that Governor Stuart's administration has not been one of the very best ever enjoyed by Pennsylvania and they will have the same difficulty in convincing the voters that the leaders of the regular Republican organization in the State have not been wholly responsible for Governor Stuart and his magnificent administration. The platform of the Republicans of Pennsylvania pledge Mr. Tener to the same principles and policies that have guided the administration of Governor Stuart. That these principles have been regarded and that these policies have been advanced no honest man may dispute and if the pledges of the party were redeemed by Governor Stuart why not by Mr. Tener.

On national issues the regular Republican party is also well fortified.

The people of no State in the Union have gathered a larger harvest from national legislation than have the people of this State. Pennsylvania's representatives in the American Congress made an earnest and successful fight for the principle of protection to employers and employees. United States Senator Boies Penrose, chief among the advisers of President Taft, led the way for the other members of Congress from this State and one of the most potent results of that contest came first in equal and exact protection and finally abundant prosperity. One development of the tariff legislation under which the country is now operating which is the result of one of the features in that legislation for which Senator Penrose fought hardest, is the hard fact that under the existing tariff legislation wage increases aggregating the overwhelming sum of $500,000,000 have been made in the United States. No wonder President Taft has repeatedly declared that it is the best tariff law ever enjoyed by this country. Every man, woman and child in the country who has shared in this general wage increase of $500,000,000 joins with the President in the assurance that the tariff law is the best they have ever enjoyed.

The self-seeking discontents have had some sort of a suspicion that Colonel Roosevelt might join with them in an attack upon the regular Republican organization of the country. In that way they hoped that the Roosevelt influence might in some way reflect upon or inject itself into the affairs of Pennsylvania. Again they are doomed to disappointment. Colonel Roosevelt has been busy ever since his return to America. He has talked to the regulars and the discontents. He has made himself clear on many disputed questions. He has agreed to speak for a discontent in one State and a regular in another State, but nowhere and at no time has he indicated his willingness to help the Democratic party and in that he is different from the self-seekers who are endeavoring to break into the political game in Pennsylvania. There is no issue of importance likely to be raised in the coming contest for Governor of Pennsylvania upon which the regular Republican organization is not amply fortified.

Yarmouth's Narrow Street.
Kitty Witches row, Great Yarmouth, can justly claim to be the narrowest street in the world, the entrance at one end being only twenty-nine inches and at the other fifty-six inches. It gives some idea of the width when you stand at the mouth of the street and look down it. The houses on each side are built so close together that they almost touch. Why this street is so narrow is not known. It is said to have been the site of a battle between the Romans and the Saxons, and the narrowness was the result of the battle. The street is now a narrow lane, and the houses are built so close together that they almost touch. The street is now a narrow lane, and the houses are built so close together that they almost touch.

Hannibal in Italy.
Hannibal entered northern Italy in the year 218 B. C. and gained during that year the two victories of Ticinus and Trebia, both in Cisalpine Gaul. The next year he advanced farther south and defeated the Romans at Trasymenus, and the year following, having proceeded still farther south, he inflicted upon them the terrible defeat at Cannae, at which time his ascendancy attained its maximum. He remained for thirteen years longer, but gained no more decisive victories. He was finally recalled by the authorities at Carthage, who had never given him anything like a decent support.—New York American.

CHRISTIANS BEAT METHODIST TEAM

Exciting Contest Waged Between Nines Battling for Premier Honors

In a game full of excitement to decide the supremacy of the Christian or Methodist team, the Christians won last night by the score of 6 to 3. There was not a single truly earned run, and hitting was noticeably on the blink. Katzy Kiefer pitched for the Christians and Pete Bege for the Methodists, and the honors were pretty evenly divided for them. The Christians scored their first run in the fourth inning. Mathers hit, went to second on a passed ball and scored on Miller's single. In the sixth the Christians scored three on some mixed up playing, when dropping balls seemed to be a feature. Mathers, Huet and Miller, were the players who scored. There were no hits but three bad errors and a base on balls did the damage. The Methodists scored three in the sixth. They only got one hit, but a base on balls, two errors, and a passed ball were handy things for the Christians. L. Bege, Proten and Waggoner were the men who tallied. The Christians scored two more in the last inning when Kiefer and Huet scored on two errors, and Huet's three baser. The score:

Addresses on Clean Athletics to be Feature

AT THE LUTHERAN CHURCH

Various Teams of League Expected to Attend in a Body

Union services will be held by the various churches of Charleroi next Sunday evening at Christ Lutheran church, especially for the Charleroi Church League baseball players. The services are being arranged by members of the Ministerial Association, and the officials of the Church League. It is expected that the various teams will attend in a body.

There will be four addresses made, all along the general theme of "Clean Athletics." These addresses will be made by President Jesse K. Johnston, of the league, Rev. W. D. Fries, pastor of St. Jerome's Catholic church, Rev. G. G. Kerr, pastor of the Washington Avenue Presbyterian church and by Prof. I. T. Daniel, musical director of the public schools.

The general purpose of the meeting will be to impress upon the young players in the league the necessity of cleanliness in athletics. The league has become noted for its many players, and there has been nothing more than just the natural friendly rivalry among the various teams. There have been practically no quarrels among the players on the field, and the few grievances which players had, have been settled without any trouble whatever. The season will close in August, and it is hoped from the interest which has been shown all along that it will continue for another such a season.

SUNDAY BASEBALL NOT YET STOPPED

Monongahela Church League Officials May Take Up the Matter

Apparently good intentions to stop Sunday baseball at Donora has fallen by the wayside, and if reports are correct, the Sunday games are thriving. Some commotion after the first Sunday game was played was raised by the Charleroi Ministerial Association. A Charleroi team played the first game against the Donora nine, and upon this was hinged the action of the local ministers. It was thought that the games on Sunday were discontinued then, but it seems that only every Sunday following there has been a game. Officials of the Monongahela Church League allege that some of their players are guilty of participation and are considering the advisability of taking up the matter for action.

Minister Accepts Call

The congregation of the First Christian church at Washington received word from Rev. Walter Mansell of the Christian church of Crawfordville, Ind., that he had accepted the call and will take charge there the first Sunday in September.

No "Fights" For Washington County

District Attorney Acheson Calls Halt on Affair at the County Seat

Two boxing matches scheduled last night at Meadowslands and in Canton township, just across the Washington county line were prohibited by District Attorney C. L. V. Acheson. The district attorney notified Al Martin, an ex-pugilist, who has been conducting the exhibitions for the last several weeks, that an act of Assembly prohibits boxing matches.

CHILDREN TO MARCH IN PARADE

Two More Bands Engaged for Bridge Demonstration

STRUCTURE BUILT IN 1895

In the main parade at the free bridge demonstration at Belle Vernon tomorrow will be a large number of school children from the Belle Vernon and North Belle Vernon schools. It is expected that they will ride in floats. The main parade will be from Belle Vernon to Lynn's Grove, back of Belle Vernon.

The automobile parade will not go to Monessen, as first arranged, but will leave Speers to come to Charleroi and then go back by way of Speers to cross the bridge and leading the marchers will go to Lynn's Grove. Two more bands, the Moose band of the valley and the Grand Army Drum corps, have been engaged and will take part in the parade. The Carmichael band has been engaged not only to take part in the parade but to give concerts during the day and evening. It is considered one of the best organizations of the kind in this part of the State.

In the parade will be automobiles, and among the marchers will be 300 Hungarians of Pricedale. Entries are still coming in for the yacht races and it will be one of the interesting features of the day.

The Bell Vernon bridge was erected in the year 1894, and was formally opened with a celebration on January 1, 1895. The celebration tomorrow will be the second one in its history.

CHARLEROI THE SECOND IN SCHOOL ENROLLMENT

Washington County Children of School Ages Number Nearly 25,000, With Males in the Majority

According to the figures compiled from the enrollment books in the county commissioners' office there are enrolled in this county 24,656 children of school ages, 6 to 16—12,704 males and 11,952 females. The total shows a decrease from the enrollment of last year, but an increase over 1907 and 1908. Washington leads with a total enrollment of 8,146 of whom 1,637 are males and 1,509 females. Other large enrollments are 2,017 in Charleroi; 1,361 Donora, and 1,216 Monongahela. Among the townships Carroll leads with 937 with Cecil and Chartiers next with 801 and 728. Allen township has an enrollment of 408 and Fallowfield township comes to the front with 295. The borough of North Charleroi's enrollment is 210 and that of Speers borough is 101. Twilight, which is a rural borough, has an enrollment of 101.

With the ridiculous declaration that representative free government has been overthrown in Pennsylvania, "34 political shreheads, some of whom have been rejected at the polls by their constituents, have issued a call for a convention at Philadelphia on July 26 to nominate a "proper" State ticket. They are sadly in distress at the performance of "the creatures of a political machine whose owner is based on fraud and force," and so they conclude that the "obligation is upon all faithful men alike" to get busy.

One of the signers of this call is Ernest F. Acheson of Washington county. He was for many years a Congressman, dealing for one term with one political machine and for another term with another machine, but always dealing for Ernie. Two years ago the Republicans of his district determined that he had had his feet in the trough long enough, and he was snowed under to a fare-you-well. Ever since then he has been warring on the Republican party. There being no more offices or patronage in sight for him, he has turned reformer, and today there is no more contemptibly gross assailant of the party which honored him so frequently and highly than he. Wherefore he feels the obligations of a "faithful" man. —Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

NEW HIGHWAY SCHOOL CODE IS INSPECTED IS APPROVED

Commissioner and State Engineer go Over Bentleyville Road Two Assistants to Superintendent Would be Allowed

The county commissioners in company with J. Russell Wilson, engineer for the State Highway Department in this section, made a tour over the Bentleyville-Ellsworth road on Saturday for a final inspection, as the highway has been completed by the contractors, Hasting and Piper of Charleroi.

The commissioners expressed themselves as being well pleased with the road especially the Ellsworth end. This part is just new while the section leading toward Charleroi was constructed two years ago. The highway which leads through the hustling little borough of Bentleyville is 10,150 feet in length while Ellsworth has 3,200 feet of the highway. Of this road 2,700 feet is 12 feet wide, and 3,000 feet extending through the borough of Bentleyville is of brick 24 feet wide; 2,600 feet is 16 feet wide and the balance 12 feet in width.

This road joins with the first Flinn road constructed in Washington county which was built in 1904 by N. C. Hunter from Beallsville to near what is known as Peterman's hill.

The estimated cost of the highway through the borough of Bentleyville was $21,000 and through Ellsworth $5,721.

Directors of Monessen-Charleroi Hospital Order Change

At a meeting of the board of the directors of the Monessen-Charleroi hospital at Monessen last night the price of admission for ward patients was reduced from $10 to $7 a week. This was done to meet the competition of the Pittsburg and other hospitals which charge the latter rate. The board has in contemplation a movement that will place the institution on a substantial footing so that it will command the united support of all interests in this section.

Washington's Former Politician Calls Regularity Crime

HOW HE GOT HIS START

Concerning the peculiar antics of former Congressman E. F. Acheson, who from a regular of the most regular, and absolute boss of the county, has become an insurgent and a bolter, the Washington Record says:

"All those who have given support to the regular Republican organization in Pennsylvania are partly responsible for these crimes—criminal conspiracy to defraud the State and are co-partners with ex-Auditor General W. P. Snyder and ex-Superintendent of Public Grounds and Buildings J. W. Shunk, now serving time in the Eastern penitentiary."

Thus the boss, irregular, editorially makes regularity a crime. If he means what he says then we cheerfully grant him the privilege of confessing co-partnership in the capitol loot.

For the past 12 years was not the ex-boss a political leader in his own county just as these two men were, "The political leaders of their respective counties?" It is true that the repudiated ex-Congressman was, in the earlier days of his leadership to an extent opposed to the State organization, but after the defeat of Dalamater in 1890 there was a truce patched up between the leaders of the Allegheny county Republicans, with whom the fallen boss had been training and M. S. Quay who was then the leader of the so-called machine. One of the terms which Quay conceded was the nomination of Acheson for Congress. This nomination was made, but the revolt in 1892 defeated him at the election. He was again, after a long, drawn-out conference, nominated in 1894 and that time elected. It is true that his nomination came to a great extent through the State machine but it was a concession by them for which he was under little obligation. It did not release him from his associates in his fights to secure that concession. But in 1895 during the

Burgess Risbeck Issues Edict on Matter

Sentiment Against Shows Which It is Feared Might Cause Trouble

In answer to the protest of the Ministerial Association Burgess Geo. W. Risbeck this morning announced that he would not permit the showing in Charleroi of pictures of the Jeffries-Johnson fight. The edict will apply not only to local theatres but also to transient picture men who might endeavor to give reproductions here of the fight.

The Ministerial Association presented a resolution to Burgess Risbeck yesterday, protesting against the licensing of places to show the pictures, the sentiment among the ministers being that such would endanger the moral standing of the community, and possibly cause race trouble as in some other places.

Burgess Risbeck said this morning: "The prevailing sentiment seems to be against the production of the fight pictures, and I think to prevent the least possibility of trouble it is better that such class of entertainment be barred. The managements of the regular theatres I am satisfied are thoroughly in accord with the sentiment, providing transient picture men are kept from the town. The latter will most certainly be barred."

Conditions Fair For Party Holding its Own in County

Rev. C. E. Swart of Washington, representative of the Prohibition party in this county, was in Charleroi today doing political and temperance work for the party. He talked to several of the supporters of the Prohibition ticket. Rev. Swart said that while he had just started a canvass of the county, matters seemed to be in good shape among the Prohibitionists. He says that many will have nothing to say on either the county or district elections, but are waiting for developments.

Why It Will Lose.

Speaking of the call for a convention at Philadelphia next week to nominate a ticket in opposition to the Republican and Democratic State tickets, of which former Congressman E. F. Acheson is one of the promoters, the Cornwallville Courier says:
"The appeal will not appeal very strongly to the average excellent citizen, first because it contains the names of too many disappointed office-seekers, and second, because no machine was ever constructed by politicians that cannot be smashed to smithereens at any time its work is unsatisfactory to a majority of the people or a majority of the party which it represents."
"Senator Penrose is accused of being the head of Republican machine and Colonel Guffey is accused of being the head of a Democratic machine, and they are both accused of having a private community of political interest; yet neither could maintain his leadership or his bossship, just as it pleases the reader to term it, without the consent of the common people of his party."

"They remain in their respective positions, leaders of organizations or bosses of machines, just as you please, so long as they give a good account of their stewardship. They stay if they make good, but they go if they do not. If they see to it that the government or the party they are responsible for is intelligently and honestly administered or directed, the great mass of honest citizens, members of either of the great political parties, are content. The present demand for a change of help smacks too much of the plaint of discharged and discredited servitude. The cry is against a political machine, not against the government, provided for the people by that machine. In spite of the wall of distress from a bunch of broken-down political hypocrites, we will always have political leaders and political organizations and our faith in them will continue to be measured by their works alone."

Boxing Contests

The action of District Attorney Acheson in prohibiting two boxing matches in Canton township, near the Washington borough line, is highly commendable. Not only are these exhibitions contrary to law, but they are perhaps the most demoralizing contests in the whole career of what is popularly termed sports. The country can get along very well without these exhibitions.

It is not the physical brutality of boxing or prize fighting that makes this form of sport objectionable and demoralizing. As a matter of fact more people are killed and seriously injured in football and baseball than in the prize ring. Two trained pugilists will not inflict as much damage to one another as will two unskilled citizens in a rough and tumble street fight, yet the so-called manly art seems to appeal to the most debased class of humanity and to exert a downward influence on all who become its devotees. The worst feature about a prize fight or a boxing match is the crowd of toughs and plug-uglies it attracts. The exhibition in itself is usually tame and uninteresting so far as a physical contest goes, but the mob that attends gives vent to the worst phases of human nature, and the effects of these are demoralizing in the extreme.

With all the facilities that exist for baseball, rowing, tennis and other clean field sports, there is no occasion for the development of the prize ring. The authorities will do well to suppress all efforts in this direction, and in doing so will perform a civic benefit that is most essential.

Like Banquo's Ghost

If further proof of the insincerity of former Congressman E. F. Acheson were needed to show him up in his vindictive fight against the Republican party in general and Congressman J. K. Tener in particular, the article published elsewhere from the Washington Record will refresh the memories of those who recall Mr. Acheson's somewhat variegated and checkered political career. The article in question tells of Mr. Acheson's double dealing with his constituents, and how in the face of earnest protests on the part of the leading and most influential citizens of the county he voted to perpetuate Quayism in the State when that species of political bossism was at its worst.
Like Banquo's ghost Mr. Acheson's record will not down. A political boss and dictator of the worst type, boasting that he named every official in Washington county, robbing the people of any voice in the selection of county candidates, and resorting to every known means in corrupt politics to attain his ends, his ultimate fate was long foreseen. At the first opportunity the voters had to exercise their franchise in the selection of candidates Mr. Acheson was overwhelmingly defeated. Now, the base ingratitude and venom he exhibits toward the party that nurtured him and made him all that he was and is, excites pity on the part of those who at one time believed in him, and contempt by the great majority that long ago realized his selfish and mercenary motives.

It is conceded that no person in the whole country has a better opportunity of enjoying life and going to the dogs than Mistah Johnsing.
Among some of the things the new sweet young teachers want who are scheduled to instruct the young ones here next year, are college beds. With that extreme should go college surroundings, college kids to teach, college food, heaven help them with that, college rooms, college laboratories, a college president and professors of various trades instead of an ordinary superintendent of schools and a bunch of principals, and a cute little college white poodle dog and a fool college cat.

From the number of people who have been appointed to tell Mr. Tener he has been nominated Governor, we opine that he will be well informed on the subject.

famous fight between Daniel H. Hastings and M. S. Quay for the chairmanship of the State committee, the ex-Congressman turned his back upon his former friends. He went over and lent his help to Quay, and the Republican machine in that fight, the fiercest ever waged in a State convention.
The following year 1896, while a candidate for Congress, he was also elected a National delegate. He went to the National Convention and voted for Quay for President, against the martyred McKinley and in violent opposition to the majority of the voters in his district.
At the beginning of the next year a spirited contest was on between the Hon. Boies Penrose and the Hon. John W. Wamamaker for United States Senate and the sentiment of Washington county was at that time overwhelmingly in favor of Wamamaker. But the fallen statesman was a staunch supporter of Penrose. The people of the county were in earnest and petitions were circulated asking the representatives to vote for Wamamaker. Large delegations of representative citizens went to Harrisburg to urge the representatives to vote for Wamamaker—such men as the late W. H. Jones, the late W. H. Borsland, the late Dr. D. M. Anderson, John W. Hallam and others, but this had no effect upon the then senator of the county. He is said to have said to W. H. Borsland that he did not care a damn how many people had signed the petition, but he was for Penrose. And he went into the caucus and sat beside the Washington county representative until they had voted for Penrose as he had promised Quay that they would do.

During the famous deadlock in 1899 when Quay was a candidate for election to the United States Senate, and also under indictment in Philadelphia, Washington county gave Quay support day after day. In the fight of 1900 and 1901 it may be said that he was against Quay and the State machine, but in 1902 he was party to a deal by which he was to return to Congress and the Washington county representative in the Legislature were to go into the caucus, which meant of course, that they would support Penrose. He was then a candidate for a second term in the new district in 1904. He was again a candidate for Congress and through the influence of the State organization had no opposition for nomination. The same was true in 1906, when, beside being the organization candidate for Congress he became a candidate for Governor. The fact that his ambition met with no response whatever from the State leaders made him desperately sore, and upon his arrival in Harrisburg at the State convention, where he found that the nomination for Governor Stuart had been agreed upon, he became engaged in a violent controversy with State Chairman Andrews in which Andrews is said to have found his supply of language quite amenable. In 1908 he again left the State organization and it is true that his desertion had considerable to do with his defeat. According to what he says now he is partly responsible for these "crimes," co-party with broken down Shumaker and poor Doc Snyder. The intelligent people of this county, knowing his political history as it has been set out above, cannot give any serious consideration to what he might say on this or any other subject.

AGENTS TO MAKE INSPECTING TOUR

Pennsylvania Employees Plan Special Trip to New York City

Among the plans now under consideration by the Pennsylvania railroad is a trip for its various agents on the Monongahela, Pittsburgh and Conemaugh divisions to inspect the new terminal facilities at New York. The plan will give the agents on these divisions, comprising about 175 men an opportunity to inspect the new terminal facilities and if the present plan goes through the trip will be made some time in August. The special train of six or seven Pullman probably will leave Pittsburgh some Friday evening and returning leave New York city Saturday evening, giving the agents all day Saturday to see the great work that is about to be thrown open to the public.

THEIR FINAL QUARREL

She Said It Was Irrevocable, but He Knew Better.

It was all off. They had quarreled, finally and irrevocably. "Doesn't matter now what it was about. The chances are that in their anger neither remembered anything except that he had disappointed her in some awful, unforgettable way and she had seized the diamond engagement ring from a dainty, slender finger and thrust it upon him with a gesture of infinite scorn.
For an instant he held the circlet in his hand ruefully. For another instant he paced the porch, hands in his pockets, head low, his voice quivering with emotion as he pleaded. Suddenly he stopped in front of her.
"That's final, is it?" he inquired.
"Final," she replied icily. "No man with a spark of—"
"All right," he snapped. "This thing's no use to me, then."
His right arm shot out like the arm of a ball pitcher, and a second later the tinkling of metal on the concrete walk half a block away told her he had thrown the ring away.
"Oh!" she cried, and there was sudden anguish in her heart. "I didn't mean to do that."
"I don't care for it," he said stubbornly. "Life has many little oars to make."
"Silly," she cried. "Help me—immediately."
He couldn't let her go alone, with night coming on, so, after proper reluctance, he followed. In the eagerness of searching all her anger melted. It took a long time but finally he stooped quickly and exclaiming, "Here it is," held up the diamond ring.
What happened in the next hour is nobody's business except their own. The human machine part of the story was disclosed to his bosom friend late that night in the quiet of their room.
"Had it in my pocket all the time," he said. "I threw a quarter down the street and I didn't find it either."
But it did the work.—Kansas City Times

One Case Where the Half Proved Greater Than the Whole.
There is no painter who lends himself to "splitting" so much as Botticelli—a division of the panel into two parts so as to form separate pictures. Years ago I sold to a Mr. Buttery of London a half a Botticelli, which is now owned by Lord Knebworth of Berlin. I have myself seen the other half of the picture as well as the picture in its entire state.
In one case I can recall the half proved greater than the whole. A certain Signor Barili bequeathed a valuable Botticelli to his two grandsons, who were twins. But, although twins, these two young men were rather quarrelsome and had no taste in common. One proposed to sell the picture, which had been painted for one of their ancestors; it is said, by Botticelli himself. The other would not consent. The first then proposed that the other should buy his share and keep the picture himself. He took me with him, and I assigned the value of the picture at 5,000 lire, saying I would give that for it. The brother declined and suggested placing the picture in the custody of an aunt pending an adjustment of the terms. "Oh, very well," cried his brother, flying into a passion. "If you won't buy and won't let me sell there's only one thing to do," and before any one could interfere he emptied three chambers of a revolver into the panel, completely destroying one-half of the composition, including a St. John and a Joseph. The picture being sent to me to restore, I could do nothing with it and strongly advised separating the panel. Shortly after I did so the owner died, and I disposed of the work for 6,000 lire to Adolph Mann. It is now, I believe, in Russia.—E. Panzone in Strand Magazine

Plans Big Meeting

The Jr. O. U. A. M. of Monongahela is making extensive preparations for a meeting to be held at that place August 2. C. H. Landefeld has charge and announces that National and State officers of the organization will be present. Many of the lodges of this section will be represented.

Breaking Away From Work.

Our business men ought to break away from trade exactions long before they do—ought to do so as a matter of volition and ethical judgment rather than of physical necessity. They ought to get and give more enjoyment in life. They ought to do less for self and more for others. They ought to live more in books and more in the open and less at their desks and realize better health and longer lives as a result. More and more culture in all its forms is ever rising a growing influence, which must manifest itself in lessened effort along the lines of money getting and the devotion of more time on the part of our business men to the pursuits which naturally accompany fortified leisure. Aristotle said, "The end of labor is to gain leisure," and Aristotle was a wise man.—A. Barton Hepburn in Century

FOUGHT CATARRH FOR 20 YEARS

Here is a letter that we sincerely ask every reader of the Mail to read. If you suffer from catarrh or any nose, throat or lung ailment, read it over twice, and then consider if you can afford to ignore a prescription with the healing virtue of Hyomei, pronounce it (High-o-me).
Booth's Hyomei Co., Buffalo, N. Y.
Gentlemen—"I suffered terribly with catarrh in the head for twenty years, and I tried many prescriptions, but never found relief. I have used Hyomei for two weeks and find it the best preparation I have ever used for catarrh. Every cold I would catch seemed to go to my throat, and I had to use gargle for days at a time. Now when I catch a cold in the throat I use the Hyomei inhaler and this soreness disappears. I have put me on the good road to getting rid of my catarrh, and if you want to use this letter to publish in your advertising, do so. Perhaps will help some other sufferer.—W. K. Engle, 708 Walnut St., Reading, Pa., Oct. 5, 1909.

THE UMPIRE

Did You Ever Hear the Fans Cheer Him For His Work?

There is one unique phase connected with the use of the umpire which perhaps has never occurred to most lovers of baseball. You have often been to a theater and seen the hero or heroine—yes, even the villain—win round after round of applause for some excellent bit of acting.
You have been to a football game and heard some ball gladiator cheered to the echo for making a long run that resulted in a touchdown or for a flying tackle that prevented imminent defeat. When some player is injured they convey their sympathy to him by cheering his name.
You have been to a ball game and heard the fans cheer some crack pitcher because in a pinch he fanned some mighty batter. It's just the natural way of the American to show admiration and appreciation.

Rack your brain, think your hard, recall every game you have ever attended, then see if you can remember a time when the umpire drew applause for his work. Have you ever heard the fans cheer the name of the umpire after he has worked a fifteen inning game which fans witnessed with close and unusual play and got away without a kick? If you can recall such an incident put it down in your notebook that you were present at a very, very unusual happening.
Do they cheer the umpire's name when he stops a foul tip with his shin or has a swift shoot bounced off his mask? Yes, they do—not. Any injury to the umpire usually sets a round of derisive laughter from the crowd. Generally, if he has been doing bad, some leather lugged individual requests that he be killed or chloroformed. Of course there are many people in the stands who sympathize with the umpire. Their sympathy is usually silence. That isn't much harm to his injury or feelings.
Applause would sound so strange to an umpire's ears that he would probably become so thoroughly frightened he would jump the back fence.—Billy Evans in New York Tribune

THE TELESCOPE.

The first telescope was pointed toward the sky on Jan. 7, 1610, when Galileo first tried his rude instrument and was rewarded by discovering some of the moons of Jupiter. No great magnifying power was needed for this, at least one of the moons is large enough to be seen by the naked eye did not the nearness of the brilliant planet prevent this. Lenses had been known for a long time and were at that time in common use by near-sighted persons.
The name of the real discoverer of the telescope seems to be unknown, but the accepted story now is that two young sons of a Middlebury optician named Linsinger some time between 1645 and 1648 while playing with some lenses happened to hold two of them at a distance from each other and were surprised and delighted to find that the weather vane on a neighboring tower seemed to come near them when looked at through the two lenses. In April, 1608, a little telescope made in Holland was offered for sale in Paris.
The next month Galileo, then a professor in the university at Padua, heard of this instrument and realized at once its importance in the study of astronomy. From the description of the Dutch instrument he had one made at once and in August he astounded the people of Venice by showing them from the top of the campanile persons entering the doors of the church at Murano. This spyglass was less than two inches in diameter and magnified three times. From this crude instrument of Galileo to the monster telescopes forty inches in diameter of the present day is the development of only three centuries.—Argonaut.

Too Lavish

Mrs. Dobbs was trying to find out the likes and dislikes of her new boarder, and all she learned increased her satisfaction.
"Do you want pie for breakfast?" she asked.
"No, I thank you," said the new boarder, with a smile. "Pie for breakfast seems a little too much."
"That's just the way I look at it," said Mrs. Dobbs heartily. "I say pie for dinner is a necessity, and pie for supper gives a kind of finishing touch to the day, but pie for breakfast is what I call putting on airs."—Youth's Companion.

The Usual Sequel.

When they reached Montreal on their elopement Chicago seemed far, far away, and they were both homesick. "I will just telegraph the letter 'F' to father," said the beautiful bride. "That will mean forgiveness."
"Better make it two 'F's,'" advised the young bridegroom.
"Gracious, dear! And what will two 'F's' mean?"
"Why, forgiveness and funds."—Chicago News.

Poor Memory.

"She made a horrible break at Green's dinner party the other night," "What was it?"
"Called the hostess by her first husband's name."—Detroit Free Press

The Old Master.

Mistress—Has anybody been to see that old oil painting I bought? Mary No, ma'am. Somebody called to see the old master, but I said he was out.—London Scraps.

On the Way.

"I understand that you owe everything to your wife," said the incessant relative.
"No," answered Mr. Meekton, "but I will if I don't stop playing bridge with her and her mother."

Her Slip.

He—Do you think if I were to kiss you your dog would bite me? She—Well—er—his never does it to any one before.

Exciting Contest Waged Between Nines Battling for Premier Honors

In a game full of excitement to decide the supremacy of the Christian or Methodist team, the Christians won last night by the score of 6 to 3. There was not a single truly earned run, and hitting was noticeably on the blink. Katsy Kiefer pitched for the Christians and Pete Bege for the Methodists, and the honors were pretty evenly divided for them. The Christians scored their first run in the fourth inning. Mathers hit, went to second on a passed ball and scored on Miller's single. In the sixth the Christians scored three on some mixed up playing, when dropping balls seemed to be a feature. Mathers, Huet and Miller, were the players who scored. There were no hits but three bad errors and a base on balls did the damage. The Methodists scored three in the sixth. They only got one hit, but a base on balls, two errors, and a passed ball were handy things for the Christians. L. Bege, Proten and Waggoner were the men who tallied. The Christians scored two more in the last inning when Kiefer and Huet scored on two errors, and Huet's three bases. The score:
